$100 Reward Offered For Stolen Boat

A $100 reward was offered today for anyone who captures and obtains conviction of thieves who hauled away a 16-foot speed hull from the home of Mrs. Joseph Kern this week.

The thieves had gale. They simply drove up to the Kern's side yard on Carroll Avenue, hauled the boat trailer onto their car, and away they went.

Neighbors saw this whole thing. But in the dark they thought it was young Joe Kern coming home to get his boat.

Mrs. Kern offered the reward of $100 for conviction of the thieves, and $50 reward for any information leading to the capture of the thieves or recovery of the boat.

The 16-foot Lyman speed hull is painted white on the outside, the inside and the seats are varnished and the floor boards are green. The boat was mounted on a yellow trailer.

A 25 horse power Johnson motor was on the back of the hull and five fishing rods and reels were lying in the boat. With everything included the stolen articles were valued at $1500 by the owner.

The sheriff's office in Hancock County have notified Louisiana authorities, who in turn put out a bulletin to all the field officers.

Deputy Sheriff Sam Peterson received a report Sunday night of a car speeding over the Highway bridge pulling a boat and trailer answering to the description of the Kern's property.

Peterson said, "After I received the report I immediately went to the bridge. I asked the toll collector, if he had seen the boat and trailer. He said he had, I then notified the State police to be on the lookout for the vehicle. But the car seems to have disappeared because they saw no trace of it whatsoever."

The depressed owner Joe Kern said, "We have never had any trouble like this before. The thing that is bad about it is that I had no insurance on the boat."

Waveland Selects A Mayor, Other Officials In Election On Saturday; Contestants Give View On Issues

KAREN IN BILOXI—Karen Kerrosien, Hancock County Miss Hospitality representative, is shown above with some of her competition in the Hospitality contest. Karen on the far right is standing next to Edna Khayat, the present Miss Hospitality for the State.

The heated three man race for Mayor of Waveland ends Saturday, with voters of the community going to the City Hall poll to vote between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m.

Bessie Georgi, the Waveland business woman and Wallace Bourgeois, contractor, are the two candidates presenting the challenge to the present mayor, Garfield Ladner.

Ladner, in his campaign to retain office, has maintained that his administration is responsible for the present popularity and progressiveness of Waveland.

"I believe the people of Waveland are well informed as to the many improvements in our town during my administration and the new projects now in process, such as the new water and natural gas systems on which work orders have been issued. We have earned the reputation as the most popular and progressive little town on the Gulf Coast. Let's keep that reputation," Ladner said.

Mrs. Georgi has contended that if elected her administration will save Waveland more than five thousand dollars a year on the mayor's salary; will provide the city with a pier and bath house to be rented, and will attempt to form a citizens advisory committee in order that the town business will not be the responsibility of any one person.

"The mayor says he is giving you people a water and gas system," Mrs. Georgi further stated. "You know this will put the town in debt for $470,000 plus interest. He didn't say anything about this, did he?"

Contractor Wallace Bourgeois has backed his candidacy with seven years' experience as a contractor. He has contended that Waveland's gas system should be built by a gas company.

He, too, offers to reduce the mayor's salary if elected and criticizes the present administration for placing "members of his family in most of the positions of the school board."

"If I am elected I will reduce this salary to $25 a month," Bourgeois stated in his campaign, and put the remainder toward the building of a wing for a sand beach. That way the people of the town could benefit by this money."

All candidates and the civic organizations of Bay St. Louis and Waveland have urged qualified voters to exercise their voting rights and privileges on Saturday.

The candidates and the league of women voters will assist citizens who have difficulty in getting out to cast their votes. Election commissioners will be Mrs. Alice Holderith, Ed Gipson and Lloyd Bourgeois.

Lightning Class District Championship races on July 6th, 7th and 8th. July 10th has been set as the date for the Summer Regatta for all classes. Also on this date a dance for all members and visiting skippers will be held.

For the benefit of the younger members the club has sailing lessons every Saturday. Alvin Wein-furter is in charge of this project.

Sea Coast Echo Honored As One Of State's Best Papers

The Sea Coast Echo was voted one of the three most improved newspapers of Mississippi during the past year.

With the state's newspaper publishers gathered at their annual convention in Biloxi last weekend, the Mississippi Press Association announced its long-awaited decision. In the "most improved" class it selected the Madison County Times, The Aberdeen Examiner and the Sea Coast Echo in that order.

All of the state's newspapers - both daily and weekly - were competing in this division. Only one other weekly on the Gulf Coast was mentioned in the awards. The Pascagoula Chronicle Star was voted first for general excellence. The Daily Herald was voted third among dailies.

The Sea Coast Echo award was presented during the press association's annual banquet at the Buena Vista Hotel Saturday night. Turner Catledge, executive managing editor of the New York Times, was the speaker.

The citation awarded the Echo said:

In appreciation of its interest in producing better newspapers and in recognition of the superior quality of its entry, the Mississippi Press Association presents this certificate to

The citation was signed by Joseph Ellis, Jr., president of the Mississippi Press Association.

Tommy Alewine, publisher of the Brandon News, was elected new president of the 88-year-old Association at its 1954 Biloxi convention.

Three hundred publishers and guests, a near-record number, attended the three-day gathering and heard such newspaper world figures as Claude Baker, Mechanical Superintendent of the Times-Picayune, Turner Catledge, Managing Editor of the New York Times and native Mississippian; George W. Henly, editor of the Times-Picayune and native of Natchez; and Stan Swinton, Chief of the Rome Bureau of the Associated Press.

HUMMING BIRD AND CRESCENT TO STOP IN BAY ST. LOUIS

The Humming Bird and the Crescent enroute to New Orleans will stop in Bay St. Louis beginning today.

The Humming Bird will pick up and discharge passengers on the way to New Orleans. The Crescent will only pick up passengers.

This decision was reached after a telephone call to the head office of the L&N Railroad in Louisville. These two additional stops were offered to the City of Bay St. Louis in the form of a compromise to settle the dispute between the two.

After it was accepted by the City was approved by the Public Service Commission and written into the records as official.

By accepting the compromise Bay St. Louis put to an end the Public Service Commission hearing. The commission had cited the railroad on three counts.

According to an official at the city hall, the stopping of these two trains will give the city the service that it needed. It will give the citizens a noon day stop and an evening stop.

C. E. Aronold, attorney for the railroad, said "I want to congratulate the interested parties in Bay St. Louis for the fine way they conducted themselves in this hearing. We are glad we could come upon a compromise. The L&N is interested in the welfare of this section and wants to help in any way possible."

Echo Contest Drives On New Subscribers

The Sea Coast Echo subscription contest for scholarships and other awards, entered its third week, with a gratifying response by the new residents of the city and those few who have not yet subscribed to the town's largest publication.

Contestants attributed much of the interest to the fact that the Echo was named one of the three most improved papers in the state by the Mississippi Press Association last week.

On page two of Section Two the rules of the contest are displayed. Everyone except members of the Echo organization may participate.

It's a courtesy to remind people about the Echo. It requires no selling at all. Join the contestants and stand a good chance of winning prizes. Money goes to everyone who brings in a subscription.

The Echo pays 50 cents for each two dollar subscription turned in to the contest.

To the Voters of Waveland

Saturday, June 26th., 1954, an election for and other town officials will be held at the town hall - the poll opens at 8 a. m. and closes at 6 p. m. I sincerely request that every eligible voter go to the town hall and vote for candidates of their choice. I believe that people of Waveland are well informed as to the many improvements in our town during the past administration and the projects now in progress such as the new water and natural gas systems on which work orders have been issued and work will begin in a few days. We have earned the reputation as the most popular progressive little town on the Gulf Coast. We keep that reputation by reelecting the administration that built it. I sincerely solicit your votes for me and my whole ticket. Give me a term that will work harmoniously for the town for four years and you will see our town prosper. So be sure to exercise your right and privilege by going to the town hall and voting for the candidates of your choice. If for some reason you anticipate some difficulty in going to the town hall, please contact me at home or at the town hall and I will assist you in overcoming the difficulty. Hoping to see you at the poll.

School Children Must Show Birth Certificates

E. E. Breland, Superintendent of Education, announced today "That it is essential that every child entering any school in Hancock County present a birth certificate before being enrolled in school."

"This law was passed by the last legislature. All parents who do not have photostatic copies of these certificates can obtain one from the Department of Vital Statistics in Jackson," Breland said. "Children that have already been entered in school and are in the upper grades and have presented their certificates of birth do not need new certificates. This law applies to only those children entering school for the first time," the superintendent added.

Forms used when applying to the State Office for birth certificates may be obtained in the County Superintendent of Education office.

Women Voters Urge Election Attendance

The league of women voters this week reminded the voters of Waveland of the municipal election which takes place Saturday, June 26 from 8 a. m. until 6 p. m. at the Waveland Town Hall.

"Although the election is for the Waveland town officials only," the league announcement said, "it should be of interest to everybody in the county and especially residents of Bay St. Louis, since the towns are so closely connected in every respect that what affects one must necessarily affect the other. Honest cooperation between the officials of the sister cities will do much to give them double strength in their efforts toward growth and importance." The league, as at every election, offers free transportation unable otherwise to get to the polls.

SOIL TESTING

Now is the time to get a soil test made on land to be planted this fall. Be sure to follow instructions when taking the sample and then send it to the State Soils Testing Laboratory at Mississippi State College for detailed analysis.

To make fertilizer recommendations doubly meaningful, specify the crop to be planted on the particular piece of land, as different crops require different amounts and kinds of fertilizer.

COTTON INSECTS

Old man boll weevil is sticking his ugly snout into your pocket book again, Mr. Farmer. And now is the time to do something about it.

Where cotton is squaring, this pest is destroying the squares. He is causing a failure to set an early crop of fruit. This bottom crop represents a considerable part of the entire cotton crop.

Flea hoppers are also being found in fruiting cotton. To protect the early squares against damage by the emerging boll weevil, cotton flea hopper and other damaging insects, farmers are advised to make three applications of insecticide a week a part.

Flea hoppers are also being found in fruiting cotton. To protect the early squares against damage by the emerging boll weevil, cotton flea hopper and other damaging insects, farmers are advised to make three applications of insecticide a week a part.

For more information on insecticides to use, how and when to apply them, see your local county agent and ask for a free copy of Extension Publication 276, "Cotton Insect Controls for 1954."

This leaflet also contains directions for making dilutions, taking infestation counts and just lots of other helpful information.

DAIRYING

Can you afford to feed cows that just barely pay their feed bill and bring too little on the market to pay you to sell them. But think a minute. Can you afford to keep them?

These low producing cows will eat food and roughage that could be much better used by the higher producing cows in your herd. How to tell if a cow is paying her way is by keeping individual cow records. These are essential if a dairyman is to make the maximum profit from his dairy herd.

Records on thousands of cows show that the cows producing less than 5000 pounds of milk or 200 pounds of fat pay very little over feed costs.

SUMMER CROPS

Areas following spring grazing crops, cereals for grain or where seed was harvested can be planted to grain sorghum, which as a general rule will grow better during hot weather than most summer planted crops.

The land should be well prepared as soon as the spring crop is off. Plant six to eight pounds of seed per acre in regular rows. This planting should be done before July 1. As a general rule,

Cloak And Dagger Lady Lives Here Now

Busmen takes rides on their days off. And sailors go swimming. By the same token, Mrs. Suzanne Mayer can't stay away from the short-em-up cowboy and Indian movies for the simple reason that war became a habit with her.

The small, lively, 50-year-old Mrs. Mayer lives on the corner of Dunbar Avenue and North Beach. Her home is beautifully furnished, crammed to the rafters with mementoes of her exciting years in Europe.

Here in the quiet, unharmed resort world, her stories of life in war-ravaged Belgium, her native country, sound like fiction.

"Yes, I have a medical degree," began Mrs. Mayer. "But in my country, the man does not appreciate that his wife is on call 24 hours a day, so my research work - cancer and allied diseases - stopped with the birth of my first child."

By 1940, when Belgium surrendered to Germany, the young housewife was the mother of two. Suzanne Billen, as she was named, sent her children away and became a member of the secret underground army which was organized in Belgium to give assistance to the allies. She began the first assignments which were to give her the nickname, "Belgium Bombshell."

She was one of 4000 secret operators who provided arms to escaped prisoners of the Germans - provided uniforms for them - helped to hide them. She provided information on troops, positions of works, movements and morale.

And then she was caught. The Germans came to her apartment, found uniforms there and forced her maid to help them locate the allied agent, who was in a beauty shop that morning.

After much questioning, she finally convinced her captors that the uniforms had been left by former tenants of her apartment and she was released.

The second time she was captured, she was not so lucky. A member of her own family unwittingly helped the Germans locate her as she was helping persons designated for prison camps to escape. This time, Mrs. Billen was sent to Detmold, the concentration camp, near Paderborn.

She stayed in the camp, ill-treated, abused and sick, for five months, until, for lack of evidence, she was released and sent to work in an ammunition factory.

She became seriously ill again and was sent to a hospital. This was taken over during the Allied bombings and in the process of being moved, Mrs. Billen escaped. "I had taken a lovely trip to the wine country of Germany before the war," said Mrs. Billen. "On this trip I met, a woman. She was a Catholic, too, and we became friends."

It was this friend the dirty, ill-treated prisoner remembered when she fled from the Germans. She took a chance and won.

"When I met her she had a knife in her hand," said Suzanne. "I asked her to help me and she finally said that we were friends before the war and Hitler could not change that."

"The Germans hoped to catch me because I had no credentials, no ration card," she said. "But that woman pulled me through on her rations and I stayed in the coal in her cellar until she came - all excited - to tell me that the allied tanks were coming into the city."

With little food, and nothing but darkness and sickness behind her, the joyful Suzanne ran into the streets of Dusseldorf to see the tanks. She fell flat on her face.

Her German friend revived her and after much talk and questioning, Suzanne was finally accepted by intelligence as the woman she claimed to be.

"Those men gave me such food!" she remembered. "And I was so starved. My stomach was so far contracted, I was unable to eat. I asked for a cigarette and it made me drunk."

The intelligence officers kept urging her to eat, until finally one of them realized her plight and the bedraggled little woman had engraved on her gallery of mental images, the sight of tough, grown men weeping because they could not help her.

After a while, this continued starvation ended, and with the advent of food and a hot bath and new clothes, life became pleasant.

The Belgium woman became an interpreter and liaison worker for the allies. She met about this time her present husband. She had been divorced before the war began.

Harry Mayer was, and is, an engineer - then with the army and now on his own.

He brought his bride to this country in 1948. They traveled about the country in the course of his work and finally settled here on the coast, where Mayer has made his home for 30 years. Since she has been in the United States, life has not been so dangerous for Mrs. Mayer, but it has had its moments.

Once, in Montana, the Mayers were invited to what they thought was a formal party. The lady from Belgium arrived in her latest Paris purchase - a night blue creation studded with brilliant, strapless; even with a train. She arrived to face an assemblage dressed exclusively in blue jeans.

Mrs. Mayer worked at a really office here for a time and she hopes to be able to take another position as soon as she is back from a visit with her husband who is now in Ohio at work.

"I like to be with people, lots of people," says Mrs. Mayer. "My husband says that I will be hurt because I am a foreigner, but that is not so. People who were born in this country do not hurt - only some of those who came here like myself and do not understand that this is a free country."

On American women, the newcomer says: "They are queens and don't know it - why, in my country they have just started installment buying. A washing machine is for the rich."

On American men: "They are much more manageable than European men. In Europe a man must rule the house whether he provides for it or not."

League Supports Public Schools

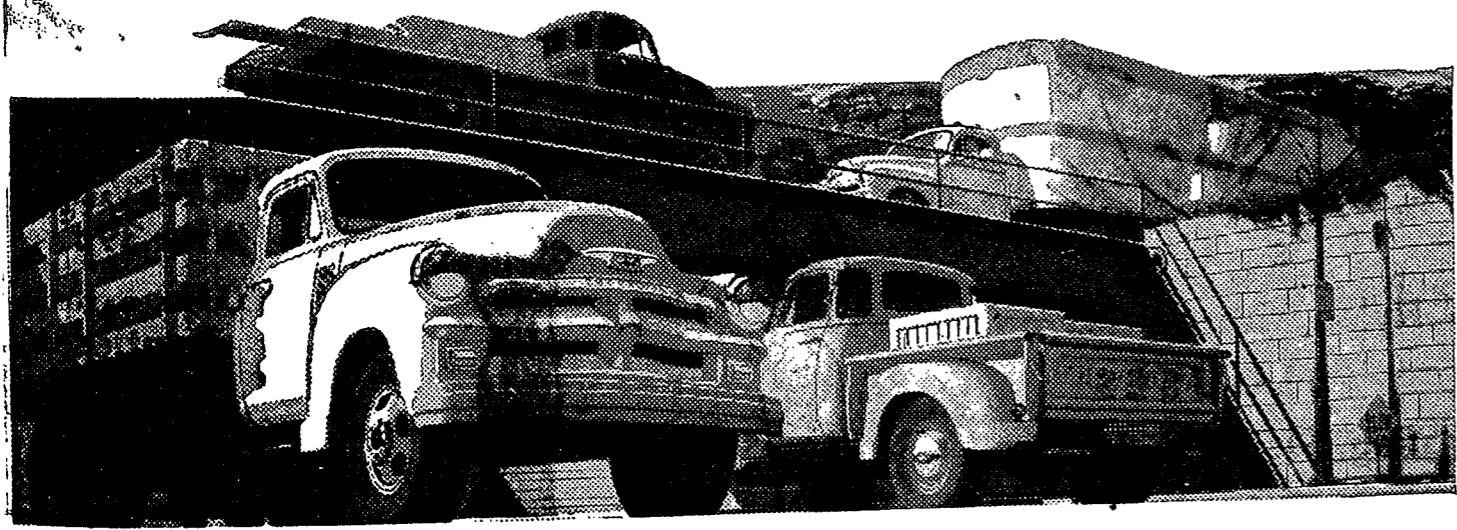

The League of Women Voters of this city has voted to endorse a state league resolution urging the legislature to provide adequate school facilities for all children.

In effect, the league is now on record as supporting the continued existence of the public school system as against the plan to make all white schools private schools throughout the state.

Sewing Group Set Up Here

"I wish I could work on this or that worthwhile project, but I just can't rush around to a lot of meetings anymore. If I could just find something I could do at home, I would love to help."

How often have you heard this sentiment expressed, or perhaps even felt that way yourself?

Well, a group of local ladies have found one answer to that problem, and have already started the ball rolling to do something about it. They hope to find others who will join them.

All of them have reared families of their own and most have grandchildren besides. But they're not ready yet to rest on their laurels—at least not when they can still help others and have a good time while they're about it.

Under the auspices of the South Mississippi Volunteer Service Council of the American Red Cross, a sewing group has been organized to do simple sewing for patients at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Gulfport. At present they are making bibs for geriatric patients, these requested by the medical staff of the hospital. One hundred of these are needed every three months.

To help get the project underway, local department stores and several individuals generously donated enough material, binding and thread needed to make about 50 to 60 bibs. Additional contributions of these materials will be welcomed. Any kind of bright colored washable cottons (except sheers) in at least 1/2 yard lengths of 36 inch material will be acceptable, as well as binding and thread.

Ladies forming the initial group were Mrs. Caroline Woodcock, Mrs. A. J. Chapman, Mrs. R. M. Preis, Mrs. Ben Argus, Mrs. Martha Johnson and Mrs. Paula Jenks. Assisting in collecting materials were Mrs. Paul White, Mrs. Charles Johnson, Mrs. W. L. Argus, Mrs. A. J. Chapman, Mrs. James O'Neal and Mrs. Bruce Sharp.

The group plans to meet on the second Tuesday of each month, when finished articles will be turned in and new materials will be picked up. Meetings will be held for the present at the home of Mrs. W. L. Argus on South Beach. No sewing will be done at these get-togethers, but will be done by the ladies at their convenience at home.

Those presently participating in the sewing project are very enthusiastic and hope to find many others to join with them in rendering a valuable service to hospitalized veterans. Anyone desiring further information about joining the group are cordially invited to contact any of the above named ladies or may call the Red Cross office. Won't you accept the invitation?

—Mr. and Mrs. Lake Charles spent the week with Neal's mother and father at Booker street. The family moved to McComb, Miss., to visit their stay.

MARRIED SUNDAY—Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Harris were married Sunday at the home of Judge Nellus Rhodes. Mrs. Harris is the former Emma Jo Mitchell of Poplarville.

Buyers' Mart

The new C & S Grocery on Beach Boulevard is a spacious self-service establishment, striving these days to provide its customers with good groceries.

We took a turn through early one morning this week, met Mrs. Scafide, who has transferred from the C & S No. 1 store in another part of town; Mrs. Harry Benjamin of the diBenedetto family who ran the store for so many years; and W. T. Smith who assists co-owner Charlie Carter in the meat department.

And that meat department. It's a specialty of the house, with Carter emphatic in his contention that only the best cuts are obtained for sale to his customers.

We noted that kidneys are available here at 23 cents a pound. Lamb is 89 cents a pound and you may take your choice of cuts from the fine looking hams on display in the self-service section of the meat counter.

Also in the self service section, you will like the packages of chicken, which the store itself, cuts and packages for you, ready for frying.

C & S has little individual watermelons at 35 cents each this week. They are slightly larger than honeydew melons and just right for the two-party table or for the family where only a couple of the members like watermelon.

The brand names in foods carried by C & S are Richelieu, Monarch and Topmost, all top quality food houses.

Richelieu has some exotic items of particular interest—their broiling mushrooms at 89 cents a can, the Richelieu wild rice at $1.23 a pound box and the ravioli, the good little pasta squares filled with meat and cook in a tomato sauce. The latter is 33 cents a can.

For the outdoor cooks, C & S

Sportsweek

By GREGORY FAVRE

When a person thinks of the coaching profession, his trend of thought is immediately turned toward the male population of the world. But here in Bay St. Louis we have an oddity in sports -- a member of the female species, who can field a girl's basketball team as well coached as any in the state of Mississippi.

She is Mrs. Nelius Rhodes, known to most local youngsters as "Miss Mat."

She began an outstanding basketball career in 1928 when she was in the fourth grade. During that year she played on the grammar grade school team at St. Joseph Academy.

From that start Mat has brought herself through the years as a star player on the varsity basketball team, as coach and leading scorer of an independent team, as coach of St. Joseph Academy in 1944 and 1945 and lastly as an advisor to Sister Jean at St. Joseph this past year.

Like any coach Mat has her own ideas on how a team should be coached. She feels that condition comes first. "Girls should keep a certain diet during basketball season. That will help their physical condition. All the teams I have coached have been stronger in the second half of the game."

"As for my strategy I play my guards in a zone with one outside forward and two roving forwards. I don't believe in unlimited dribbling unless you are freeing the ball," she said.

Coach Rhodes feels that the best rule that has been admitted into girls basketball in the past decade was the one that allows a girl to hold the ball only three seconds. "Before they put this rule in a tall girl could just stand under the goal and wait for a shot."

Mat also took a definite stand on the officials situation on the Gulf Coast. "I think that officials should be required to display his knowledge of basketball before he can referee a game. As it stands now anybody who can pay their fees can officiate at a game."

The thing that makes the local lady coach different from any other coach is the fact that she has raised three children during the years that she has been connected with the coaching end of athletics. She is the mother of two boys and a young girl.

There is one thing of which you can be positive. That is whenever there is a basketball game in this vicinity, there will be certain lady named Mat in the stands. For this lady has the game in her heart.

Contradicts

Mayor's Platform

The Mayor stated that he had surfaced 15 streets, remodeled the Town Hall and erected 27 street lights. Did he do this with a surplus? No -- he floated bonds for $34,000 at 6% interest. Yet he builds his platform on these few things, and brags about them. You would be ashamed to admit that these few things were the most you could accomplish in eight years. He says that he has contracted to build a 530 ft. pier, as if he is giving us the pier. Let's ask him a question or two. Where did the proceeds from the dance go? What happened to the door to door donations that were collected, and the donations received through mail, because of letters written by the Mayor, and the other benefits to gather funds for a pier? You know it is a shame that at the time of the year, when we could be enticing people to settle here and developing our community, we don't even have a pier. The Mayor says he is giving you people a water and gas system. You know this will put the town in debt for $40,000 plus interest. He didn't say anything about this. Did he?

You know a town like ours, should and will have, if I'm elected, a long pier, with lights, showers, dressing rooms or lockers. This will not cost the town or the people one cent. We could collect 25¢ for the use of lockers and showers. The pier should and will be located at the head of the Commercial Section -- Coleman Ave. The money collected from the lockers and showers will be put in a special fund for the maintenance of the pier. Your vote is important in the coming election -- vote for a change. I ask you, please, go to the polls Saturday and vote for (B. G.) Beeter Government and B. G. Georgi. Don't be fooled again! (Paid Political Adv.)

TIME FOR A CHANGE

6 Years is Enough For One Man

Bea Georgi, candidate for Mayor recommends advisory committee appointed by citizens of Waveland.

If elected Mayor this coming Saturday, I will suggest to the citizens of Waveland to appoint an honorary advisory committee, in this way the burden of most town business will not fall upon the shoulders of any one individual.

SAVINGS
By not accepting a salary of $105.00 per month for four years, will create a savings of Five Thousand and Forty Dollars. This money can be used for an extra laborer which will benefit the citizens and will also create another position for one of our natives. There are now only 3 men to cut grass, pick up garbage and keep up our town. Look at the grass that needs cutting and the ditches that need cleaning, but don't blame these 3 men, they do the best they can and I think a good job, for the territory they are expected to cover.

Candidate For Mayor.

FISHING IS IMPROVING

Despite a more than 100 per cent increase in our angling population during the last 15 years (17 1/2 million licensed fishermen in the U.S. this year as compared to less than eight million in 1939) fishing actually is improving.

Much credit for this battle against unwhil odds goes to the little-known Sport Fishing Institute and its executive director, Dr. R. W. Eschmeyer. His sole objective is to shorten the time between bites for Mr. and Mrs. Angler.

Over 100 anglers took part in the third annual New Orleans Open Invitational casting tournament Sunday and Monday at the new NOED casting dock in City Park.

The tourney, which decided the Southern championship, attracted the largest field ever to assemble in a New Orleans casting contest. Casting clubs from Texas, Alabama, Tennessee, and Florida were represented in the event.

Under ideal weather conditions Sunday and with only a few scattered showers to its interruption, the contests produced scores that would have won in an tournament in America, in the opinion of many of the experts present.

Mayor John Seafide and Commissioners Cyril Glover and Sylvan Lander entertained members of the Public Service Commission, the court stenographer and the assistant attorney general of the state on a fishing trip yesterday
